Beware When Dealing with Humans

OC OC

Wrote this as an example to a friend on using the 'humans are fae to animals' idea for a HFY idea.

Beware when dealing with humans. Even when you're visiting, especially when you're visiting.

Human food taste better than any other food in the galaxy. They claim that it's all junk but the flavors, the textures, it makes standard nutribars taste like cardboard. There are those who tasted a human meal, ones the humans consider to be proper, and they would go mad, trying to recreate the taste.

Human cities are filled with colors. They're one of the few species that can see what they call 'red'. To us, they look bland but they have special glasses made to correct their own members with the disability to see this red and it worked on other species. What we thought of as bland became colorful, with shades and tints only they can see.

Humans are melodious. Their whole planet is in tune with the cosmic vibrations. Being in a human park is like being surrounded by an orchestra among their beasts. To actually be in a human cultural center during a performance is like stepping into the home of the gods. Many would remain enraptured at the sound, even at the memory of the music, afterwards.

Humans are ancient. They're one of the longest lived species. A human reaching old age without augments would live pass five generations of Kaltross. Imagine what wonders, what works they could do with such long lives.

Humans are stamina hunters. They may not be the fastest nor the strongest but they can out run any other species. After a few bursts of speed, a Tavor would collapse from exhaustion and dehydration, a human would continue on their merry way, only a quarter through a marathon, I hear in a whisper.

Be careful when dealing with humans. For humans can do many things deemed impossible to us. They have made cities in the void of space without any star. They made constructs that think & serve their every whim. They deconstruct a star simply because a star wasn't an efficient use of its resources. Their minds don't think like ours. They smile for joy than aggression.

They make eye contact out of politeness than hunting.

Their ways are not our, nor anyone else's, ways.

So be careful when you're invited by a human into their abode. You will come out changed for it.
